

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PRINCETON, N. J.
May 17th, 1892.

Dear Clements:

The "Danvers Incident and Plunder of the State" will be taken place at the Plains Hotel, in Princeton, on the evening of Monday, June 13th, 1892.

The joint of the Program (including the "Class Record") will be the following: 1. A paper on the same title, read and smoothed, during the "Session," which will close at the close of the Debate (10 o'clock) on the 14th.

The Committee is unanimously of the opinion that this should be a prominent place in the hands of a Class President, and that the following is a paper on the same title, read and smoothed, during the "Session," which will close at the close of the Debate (10 o'clock) on the 14th.

And, besides, the Committee has had to considerably summarize copies on behalf of the Class during the last year past.

It is therefore suggested that in reaching either of the above, you may feel that there are additional ones, say by the way, to the "Class" "Dining Room."

Best of loves to JOHN TOWN, Treasurer of the Committee, at your Pleasant Home, New York.

In order to make a more full paper at the Class Dinner, the Committee is united of the opinion you will be in demand on before June 10th, at 10 o'clock, I have been told.

She Is One of Twenty-nine, Pensive, Solitary,
Ann: "Twas Friday morn, when we set sail,"
To six full years since we landed for our "dope,"
And were graduated proud A. B. A.
Since then we've engaged in learning up our ships,
And obtaining other degrees.

Chorus—Oh, the years may move and go,
But still we'll remain with you, sweet, to the end,
And be jolly in the good old way.

Full measure of the boys have doled up for life,
And we may be engaged, also!
But the teachers are trying, in a lovely kind of drift,
To create the average of the ripe.

Then give me cheer in our graduate classes at home,
And one for the tedious fun,
And one for the girls who will catch the teachers' love,
Then, Hush! be old Beauty's name!

New York, March 25th, 1893.

My Dear Chairman:

At a recent meeting of your Committee, it was decided that an earnest presentation should be made to the Class of the exact financial condition of the Memorial Fund. The copy of the report of the Memorial Fund is now completed, and your Committee has sent it to the Class in accordance with the contract. Of the whole amount subscribed, only $1,200 has been paid in, leaving a deficit against us of $1,800. The sum of $1,200 must be paid to the artist in June, when the statue is put in place.

This means that the full amount authorized by you should be immediately paid in, and if possible, that you should increase your subscription. The total amount subscribed up to the present time is a little over $1,000. Your Committee cordially expects to be supported in this matter with the willing generosity and enthusiasm which are peculiar to '93.

The Memorial will be formally presented to the College on Tuesday afternoon, June 15th, 1893, and the dinner will take place on the evening of that day.

70.

My Dear Fellow:

The Committee have received the good notice of the Annual Dinner of the Princeton Club to be held at the Hotel Brunswick, on Thursday, March 25th, 1893, at 8:30 o'clock.

It is going to be "a good day for the old school." The dinner and the dinner will be given. The dinner and the dinner will be given. The dinner and the dinner will be given.

We feel, of course, that it is a good day for the old school. The dinner and the dinner will be given. The dinner and the dinner will be given. The dinner and the dinner will be given.

Faithfully yours,

WILLIAM B. WILSON, Jr.

THE DECENNIAL REUNION

The evening features of this reunion was the presentation to the College of the Dr. McCook statue of the Dr. McCook. The statue has been written about the statue and the value of the memorial, that the largest number of people should be made of it.

At a meeting of the class, held in New York in December, 1891, it was decided that a statue of Dr. McCook be presented to the College as our Decennial, and a committee was appointed to take the matter in charge. The contract with Mr. Augustus St. Gaudens was signed in May, 1893, and the statue landed from August of that year to March, 1893, when the statue was sent to Philadelphia. The statue cost $12,000, and is considered by the artist, his assistants, and by art critics, as one of his best works.

Construing a Gothic cross. The statue, for it is nothing less than this, though intended to relief from a flat granite block, has been made from numerous village boys given to the sculptor by the venerable Staudens when most vigorous work for the College was done while the class of '79 was undergoing the losses of instruction. Altogether the figure is a most impressive one. It is full of massive characteristics, its treatment is simple. The statue's features have been full of the Staudens' personal which he used with such efficiency and telling effect. Placed on the wall of the chapel, in the hall of the new, it will be for all time a lasting tribute to the vigorous administration of Dr. McCook, and a worthy record of the best of the day. When the class of '79 next to double again the form which their number should take, it was determined, after much discussion, that there were two alternatives. The first of these is the memorial, which has been successfully carried through. The suggestion of it was with a heavy response from all, providing, also, that it could be done by the members of the college of the day. The other possibility was the formation of a building of some kind, a museum or club, where the people would have their own. The statue purport for more composed the solution.

Letter of J. M. Jones

Madison, N. J., Jan 30 1888

Dear Mr. ...

I was surprised when told of the proposal to erect a statue of me by the ... I had no idea that I was unworthy of it.

And the proposal has recently proceeded from the hands of a college class for whom I have always endeavored to do my best.

I do therefore accept the honor with gratitude and will fall in with any proposal which the trustees may make.

I am glad that I am gratified to think that the statue will help to keep my name connected with the college for which I have labored so pleasantly for more than thirty years. I am, yours truly,

My dear Mr. ...

I wish to go to Princeton to learn of Mr. ... before without his knowledge that I am there will you tell me the days and hours when he can be seen and I will go down.

Your last note was received but I was out of town when it came. I am at home at the large relief.

Yours sincerely,

A Song for Seventy-Nine.
Quindecennial, Princeton.
1898-1899.

There is a college that's known to fame,
Famous throughout the land,
And there's a name with a glorious name,
Which seventy-nine
Years ago has gathered from far and near,
Your hearts were and are
Cuddled in all of the days that have Gone with old Seventy-Nine.

(CHORUS)

Princeton, Princeton!
Faint but so glowing name,
Your name is famous!
We'll sing to you and seventy-nine
We'll sing to you and seventy-nine
We'll sing to you and seventy-nine
We'll sing to you and seventy-nine
We'll sing to you and seventy-nine
We'll sing to you and seventy-nine

Now, while we sing beneath the trees,
Princeton, Princeton!
Beneath the trees, in all our many hours,
We'll sing to you and seventy-nine
Just for a sign we get here again,
"Faint but so glowing name"
Waiting while we sing to you and seventy-nine
Waiting while we sing to you and seventy-nine

OLD NASSAU

There are to leave and as he goes,
Bid every one withdraw;
Let all with one accord retire,
In praise of Old Nassau.

Chorus:

In praise of Old Nassau, no more
Shall we sing; we'll sing
No more, we'll sing, with the old one,
The story of Old Nassau.

Let music rule the singing here,
The music cannot go wrong;
And shall each heart with all her power,
In praise of Old Nassau.

Chorus:

And when these words in dumb we tell,
With reverence and awe,
Another thing shall breathe our song,
In praise of Old Nassau.

Chorus:

Till then with you we sing, we'll bring,
And while a breath we draw,
We'll sing to cheer and sing,
Long live to Old Nassau.

OLD NASSAU

Time er's brief and e'er's vain,
But e'er's our wither'd
Let all with our aged voices
In praise of Old Nassau.

Chorus
A part of Old Nassau, my heart,
A part of Nassau, I heartily
Do love all you with me shall love
From now to the future.

Let us all ride the flying horse,
The world's round as a disc,
And shall each heart with all her powers
In praise of Old Nassau.

Chorus

And when these walls in dust are laid,
With reverence and awe,
Another throng shall breathe our song
In praise of Old Nassau.

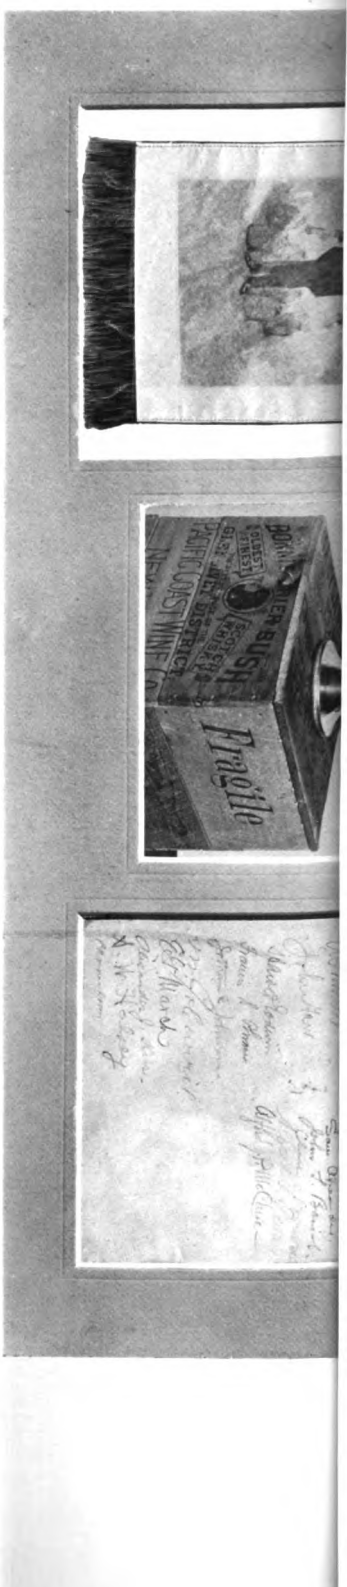

Chorus

Till then with joy our songs we'll bring,
And while a breath we draw,
We'll all unite to shout and sing
Long live Old Nassau!

“In peace, there's nothing so becomes a man
As modest stillness, and humility :
But when the blast of war blows in our ears,
Then imitate the action of the TIGER.
Stiffen the sinews, summon up the blood.”

VICENNIAL ODE

1879—PRINCETON—1899

The years are tides in Time's eternal sea,
And twenty times the tide has ebb'd and flow'd
Since we made trial of futurity,
'Gainst wind and current, like a fleet which rode Together at an anchor, borne afar
By varying fortune, in life's stress and war.

The sun of life has risen with the tide
Of years; high noon, the burden and the heat
Of striving, like midsummer days, abide,
Heavy upon the soul; and, faint and sweet,
Supernal music sounds in distant chime
From Hope's fair island, 'cross the seas of Time.

We may not linger in the tropic sea,
Of midday splendor and of blazing sun,
Drifting in idle pleasure; silently,
Like streams of light, the unseen currents run
And sweep the nations onward, as the tide
Scatters man's little ventures far and wide.

A mighty flood is sweeping round the earth,
Freedom and order, liberty and light;
Old wrongs are dying and new rights have birth.
The soul of man shall break unlawful might.
World borne, the Saxon banners are unfurled,
And Saxon brothers stand against the world.

And so stand we, amid the uncertain strife
And changing fortunes of the flowing years,
Which sweep us onward o'er the crest of life,
Forever onward, till the spirit hears,
Like distant surf upon an unknown land,
The sea of Time break on the Eternal Strand.

The years are tides in Time's eternal sea,
And twenty times the tide has ebbcd and flowed
For us together; yet eternally
For us the deeper stream of brotherhood
Shall bear us onward; long as tides shall run
And suns shall rise, at heart we shall be one!

Bureau of Information

THIS is not a Class history, nor minutes of the various meetings of the great Class of '79. It is rather a "snap shot" at some of the '79 actors and their performances upon the stage of life. No attempt is made to treat fully any group or profession. We have hastily gathered together for this occasion and put into permanent shape a few glimpses of "some men and their doin's." It is a clear case of rari nantes in gurgite vasto.

In 1904, upon the occasion of our "silver wedding," we hope to present a complete record of every professional and business man in the Class.

We have nineteen ministers, but are able to "present" to you only fifteen in this souvenir.

The Class is full of statesmen and patriots. The four that you will find herewith are only samples, but rare and choice!

The doctors are so many—twenty in all—that we gave up the attempt to do them justice; while with forty-two lawyers and fifty-eight business men, it is evident that the world would not be able to contain a souvenir that embraced them all.

Res ipsa loquitur, but where assistance is needed, allow us to state that as to the "Faculty in the Seventies" (page 6), it has been impossible to get a picture of the Faculty as it was in 1875. We have here some of the Professors who dropped out before we entered College; and, of course, we miss Tutors Ferris, Condit and Marquand.

The archives of the Class are not very rich in material in the early eighties. For the Triennial Souvenir (page 9) all we could exhume consists of the cover and pages of the first record, the menu of the dinner at the Nassau Hotel, and Bridges's Class Song.

Archæological research is more profitable as we come to the Sexennial Souvenir (page 11). Isham, with prophetic instinct, had carefully preserved the poster; and you will find herewith a reproduction of our most elaborate menu, the Sexennial "Call to Arms," Bridges's "Reunion Song," and the account of the Sexennial reunion from the record.

The Decennial Souvenir recounts mediæval history and the McCosh Memorial; and the fleeting years have presented no finer or more enduring memorial of loyalty and affection to the College (pages 13-14).

For the Quindecennial (page 15), that most enjoyable of all Class reunions, we have the poster, the "Song for '79," the menus and the old "Ode."

The Seventy-nine Farm (page 16), at Monterey, in the Berkshire

Hills, was purchased in 1894. It consists of some eighty acres of good farming land in the heart of the Berkshires, and furnishes a most beautiful home for Bert Smith and his children. There isn't a more sightly location in Massachusetts. The view to the right of that of the house is a miniature of what is to be seen from Smith's side porch.

The reports of the Trustees will furnish information in detail. It is enough to state here that the money for the purchase, equipment and support of this property was contributed entirely by the Class, with two exceptions. Forty-one members of the Class are interested in the property, and up to date over $3,500 have been spent on its purchase, equipment and improvement. All it lacks at the present time is repainting and some little details, which render the expenditure of about $150 in the near future advisable.

The celebration of the Sesquicentennial, when the College died and the University was born, is too recent for commemoration here.

Despite the fact that the literary production on this subject issued by the University may create a different impression, Major Wright, as Marshal, and the '79 procession in the parade were the crowning features of that celebration. Some of the transparencies are herewith reproduced (pages 21-22). Their wit, wisdom and appositeness need no commentary. Isham fecit!

The souvenir of that celebration (page 23) reproduces the seal, the '79 badge, the general invitation to the orgie, the programme, and cuts of Wilson and of some of our transparencies in the procession, taken from "Sketches. Princeton Sesquicentennial Celebration."

It must not be forgotten that the marshaling and impressive marching of the sixty-odd '79 men in that procession were largely due, first, to the leadership of Marshal Wright, and secondly to the fact that the Class had been inured to this heroic exertion by camping out on army cots at the Class Headquarters on Canal Street for some two or three days.

THE CLASS DINNERS.

'Though we are justices and doctors
And churchmen, Master Page,
We have some salt of our youth in us;
Come, let's to dinner.
Oh, the days that we have seen! Come, come."

The gastric juices of the stomach and the gray matter of the brain have always acted in concert in this Class, and have ever produced happy results.

It was in the winter of 1880, at a Class dinner, that President Halsey appointed a Committee to resuscitate and put on its feet the Princeton Alumni Association of New York, an Association that had been for years without a meeting. We "done" it!

It was at another dinner that the idea of an Alumni Athletic Advisory Committee was conceived, and upon which Committee a '79 man has almost continuously served since its creation.

The early gatherings of the Class were held without exception at Martinelli's, in New York. The texts were various; but the idea was the same—to consolidate and maintain Class unity and affection.

The second dinner that the Class ever had was given to Halsey and Elsing, on June 6th, 1882, and just before the "Triennial" at Princeton. It was to celebrate the advent of those distinguished prophets into metropolitan life.

On February 20th, 1883, the text selected for that dinner was the engagement of John S. Baird.

On September 19th, 1883, we bade a tearful farewell to Chalmers Martin, who shortly thereafter embarked for the missionary business in Siam.

On February 3d, 1885, and for the purpose of completing arrangements for the Sexennial Reunion, a large number met and dined at Sieghortner's, in Lafayette Place.

On January 22d, 1886, at the same place was given a dinner to Isham, which was very largely attended and which was in recognition of the "Foundation" of the justly celebrated "Isham Dinners"—more of which anon.

At Commencement, on June 21st, 1886, there was a large reunion of the Class, informal but spontaneous, at Princeton. It didn't make any difference that it was an "off" year.

On December 8th, 1887, the Class Committee and the New York contingent, with contributions from the outlying districts, met at Sieghortner's, discussed and selected the McCosh Memorial, and awarded the contract to Augustus St. Gaudens.

The "occupation" of the Class Committee as a caterer of dinners ended so long ago as June 6th, 1884, when Isham usurped that office. The Committee has long since canonized him; for

'An householder, and that a grete is he;
Saint Julian he is in his contree.'

Twice a year for fourteen years, Isham has invited to his house nearly every '79 man within striking distance of New York. The average attendance has been twenty-two, ranging from seven, the lowest, to thirty-five, the highest number. Sixty-four different men have enjoyed his hospitality, and during this time six hundred and eighteen diners have sat at his board. To these dinners principally are due the solidarity and enthusiasm of the Class.

With an ingenuity almost "devilish," and altogether artistic, Isham has reproduced souvenirs, mementoes and memorabilia of College life, a few of which adorn the pages of this publication (pages 27-29).

On the occasion of the fourteenth dinner, May 26th, 1892, Isham was presented with a very artistic bowl, which appears on page 29.

Souvenirs of the special dinners of recent date will be found on pages 24-26.

The Wilson Dinner took place at the Princeton Inn, on the 12th of March, 1897, some thirty members of the Class going to Princeton to honor "Tommy" Wilson and present him with a fine bust of George Washington (page 24).

Of the two Cuyler Dinners (pages 25 and 26), the one in Princeton may be characterized as a national affair, for among the fifty-six present there were some from other Classes.

"The real thing," however, took place in New York, on December 1st, 1898, at Isham's house, being the twenty-seventh dinner in regular course, and, with thirty-five present, the largest of the series. This was a purely private affair, and designed entirely as an exhibition of love and affection for a member of this Class than whom none lives that has a greater interest in Princeton. Hardly a week of the College session has elapsed since graduation when he has not been in Princeton looking after the interests of "Me College."

"Our Educators" (page 30) need no guidepost. With the "base counterfeit" of Fletcher Durell we have a glimpse of Lawrenceville. To the northeast of Milford is a view of the institution "on the banks of the Wabash, far away." Below Sid. Sherwood we have a view of Johns Hopkins, and the San Antonio Academy is in juxtaposition to Seeley, as is the Central Turkey College, at Aintab, to Riggs.

We have endeavored to artistically group "Our Ministers" (pages 31-32). McClure should have been a Baptist. His Episcopal Church at Wyncote is not properly located for an Episcopal meeting house. To the northwest of John Kerr is his church; and to the southeast of Elsing the DeWitt Memorial, on Rivington Street, in New York. Under Dr. Halsey is the "dear old Spring Street" conventicle; and Sam. Harlow's church and parsonage are to his left and under him. Jones is appropriately placed between the interior and exterior of his fine church in Philadelphia, toward the construction of which no small sum was contributed by his Classmates. Leeper has the finest Presbyterian Church in Fort Wayne, Ind., and "Ajax" Kerr is supporting the Broome Street Tabernacle in New York. We have endeavored to divide Harry Cooke so that one-half of him is in the inside of his new church in California and the other on the outside.

When it comes to the Missionaries (page 33), the first puzzle is to discover Hal Orbison, who is in front of the Forman Christian College at Lahore, India, surrounded by a miscellaneous aggregation of Hindoos in an advanced stage of conversion. We assure you with the utmost confidence that he is there.

You will not need a microscope to detect "Mike" Nair, who is in the background of a select group of his Japanese confederates.

We are sorry that we have to present "Pat" Gilman purus et simplex. The art of photography does not seem to be as well advanced in the Island of Hainan as in less benighted sections of heathendom.

It is no chore at all to pick out the Patriarch Morrison, who is surrounded by his associates in front of one of the mission buildings at Saharanpur, in India.

Hon. Mahlon Pitney, as the indubitable prospective Governor of the State of New Jersey, is our greatest future statesman (page 34).

Ad Riker is a past statesman—not a statesman with a past. He and the lately lamented Solomon, Rex, regard politics as a vanity.

Charlie McFee as a statesman deserves absolutely no credit, for he was born that way, while Frank Phraner has only lately come into prominence as the Republican Boss of Union County, New Jersey.

The Princeton Club of Philadelphia (page 35) owes its existence to "Bin" Miller.

We have here the exterior of the Club, the main stairway, the library, the cafe, the first President of the first Princeton Club possessing a club house in this country. The club house was formally opened at No. 1628 Chestnut Street, February 11th, 1898, and is now located in very pleasant quarters at No. 117 South Seventeenth Street.

The Princeton Club of New York opened its club house on the 1st of June, with a membership of nearly eight hundred. The Philadelphia club anticipated it nearly eighteen months; but it is much more modest, the resident membership being two hundred and twenty, and the non-resident one hundred and ten. Its inception and maintenance are largely due to the interest of the Class of '79 in this centre of Princeton activity.

Among the "Heroes of the Spanish War" (pages 37-39) we number three who saw actual service. This takes no account of Cleve Dodge and Louis Vanuxem, who were prominently identified with the Red Cross and other relief work.

McGaw Woodbury served, with the rank of Major and Chief Surgeon, principally in Porto Rico. He was Surgeon of the First Division of the First Army Corps at Chickamauga. For a time he served on General Wilson's Staff in Porto Rico, and was the Chief Medical Inspector of that island.

Frank Lord (page 38) was commissioned as Captain and Commissary of Subsistence of Volunteers, May 12, 1898. On June 9 he was ordered to join the Fifth Army Corps and was assigned to duty under General Kent. He was in the Santiago campaign, under fire at Daiquiri, was for some time Depot Commissary at Siboney, acted as interpreter on account of his familiarity with the language, and after the capitulation of the city was for some time in sole charge of the depot and post office at Santiago. He appears to have gotten all there was in it, for he was for some time sick with the Cuban malarial fever. He expects, however, to get his discharge in time to celebrate the Vicennial.

Phil. Fraser is our most modest warrior (page 39). It was impossible to cajole or wheedle him into letting us have his picture; and yet he of the three was the only one to be wounded in the war.

And further deponent saith not, for "the rest of the acts of '79 which they did, are they not written in the book of the Chronicles of the Kings"?

WILLIAM R. WILDER,
Secretary.

New York, June 1, 1899.
